

March 16, 2017 Investing_Ideas

by Bernard E. Scoville

My Favorite Program or Website:

I like the part of StockCharts.com suggested by Gary Antonacci in his “Dual Momentum Investing” book. Below I will provide some details on using this website.

First: Use your browser to go to StockCharts.com.

Second: Double click on “FREE CHARTS”.

Third: Scroll down to “PerfCharts”

Fourth: In the ellipse below “Create a PerfChart” type the symbols of the stocks and/or funds that you want to investigate, separating them with commas.

My example at this time: “MPLX,FB,APPL,LUV,IWN,RSP, EQAL,VOE”.

Fifth: After the chart is drawn, type 252 in the space showing “200” and press enter. The chart will be redrawn for 252 working days, a year. This is what Gary Antonacci recommends.

These are simple and useful charts that even include the dividends. Momentum is an important variable; winners tend to keep on winning. Losers not so much.

My security suggestion at this time: MLPX, because:

- 1. Pipeline company ETF. Pipeline companies can make lots of money with very few workers once the pipelines are built.
- 2. Diversified ETF.
- 3. MLP’s return 90% of what they make to shareholders.
- 4. Buy investing in MLP funds you get diversification without having to do a k1.
- 5. This ETF has a 4 star Morningstar rating.
- 6. The StockCharts.com/Free charts/Perf Charts momentum is very good.
- 7. 5.46% yield.
- 8. Expense ratio: 0.45%.